Text: Song of Songs 4:1-5:1 (p.670)

The way we handle the differences between men and women says something about what we believe about _____.

If deep within we struggle with, even despise our differences, we are saying we don't believe God knew what He was doing when He created humanity _____ and _____.

When we embrace and celebrate our differences, we are actually giving _____ to our God.

The Bible clearly affirms the beauty, _____, and joy of sex within a covenant marriage relationship between a man and a woman.

In general, men have a _____ _____ for sex than women.

In the marriage relationship, it is the _____ of both the husband and the wife to love their spouse in the way God designed them to be loved.

Wives, you hold one of the great keys to your husband's heart. Regular, joyful, mutually fulfilling sex empowers a man like little else. Fulfilling sex in a marriage gives a man great _____.
(v.15)

Men, because we find worth and confidence in sex, we men are much more prone to _____ _____ than many women.

In general men are far more _____ _____ than women.

God made men to be visually drawn to women as a first step to proper _____ of a lady leading to marital oneness.

With this comes a problem. Temptation is not sin, but it is tempting. A man's fallen tendency is to take the next step and _____ on the lady or the image. This is where the choice takes place (and we do have a choice, Job 31:1).

Women, when you are married, part of your husband's joy will be in _____ you.

_____ helps your counterparts more than you know. It is respectful to him and respectful to yourself.

In general sex starts in the _____ for a woman.

A woman's ability to respond to her husband is tied to how she feels _____ to him at the moment.

Men, if the only time you interact with your wife is when you want to have sex, she's probably not going to be that interested. She may even be _____ because she may feel used (and she may be).

When you get married, you are making a decision about your taste regarding _____.

Your spouse is your _____.

God is the one who designed our sexuality. God is the one who gave it to us as a gift. And in the context He designed, He finds great pleasure in a man and woman _____. His gift as He designed. (5:1)
